

1 Your name in Korean

애니

Syllable	Built from	How to say it
애	ㅇ + ㅐ	e, like the e in mesa
니	ㄴ + ㅣ	ni, like ni in niño

The letter ㅇ at the start of a syllable makes no sound at all. It simply fills the space where a consonant would go.

2 The five vowels you already had

Spanish gave you these for free. They are the same sounds. You are not learning them, you are relabelling them.

ㅏ

casa

아

ㅑ

mesa

에

ㅣ

si

이

ㅓ

solo

오

ㅗ

luna

우

Put ㅇ in front of each one, and you can read this:

아 에 이 오 우

One more free sound. ㄹ is almost exactly the r in pero. English speakers work on this sound for months. You already have it.

3 Practice: write your name

애니

애니

Say it out loud each time you write it. Sound first, shape second.

메모 · Notes

Hear a word you want to keep? Write it here, even in Spanish spelling.

4 Greetings

한국어	English	When
안녕하세요	Hello	Any time, to anyone. Bow your head slightly.
만나서 반가워요	Nice to meet you	First time meeting someone
감사합니다	Thank you	Always safe, always polite
또 만나요	See you again	Leaving

Learn these as whole phrases. Don't take them apart yet. The pieces will make sense later.

5 Words you already know

These came into Korean from other languages. You know them already. You just didn't know that you knew them.

 커피 · 카페	 케이크 · 초콜릿
 피자 · 파스타	 넷플릭스 · 드라마
 호텔 · 택시 · 버스	 카메라 · 티켓
 콘서트 · 뮤지컬	 피아노 · 기타
 개 · 강아지 · 고양이	 한국 · 서울
 스페인 · 마드리드	 게임 · 인터넷

Some are closer to Spanish than to English: 카페 ≈ café · 파스타 ≈ pasta · 피아노 ≈ piano · 초콜릿 ≈ chocolate.

One thing does change, and that is the syllable count. Netflix has 2, but 넷플릭스 has 5. Korean gives almost every consonant its own space. Count them on your fingers; it helps.

Homework, two small things

1. Write 애니 five times, saying it out loud each time. (page 1)
2. Pick one word from section 5 and say it out loud. Just one. That's all.

Next lesson

We'll make you a real Korean name. Not a spelling of “Annie”, but one where every syllable carries a meaning, the way Korean parents choose them. Then we'll find your colours.

또 만나요! 🙌